Sinners repent or more will die! Sinners repent or more will die!" Caitlin Strong listened to the chant repeated over and over again by the Beacon of Light Church members who'd decided to picket a young soldier's funeral here in San Antonio in pointless protest. The words were harder to make out across the street, beyond the thousand-foot buffer the protesters were required to keep, but clear enough to disturb the parents of an army hero who just wanted to bury their son in peace. "What are you going to do about this, Ranger?" Bud Chauncey, the young man's father, asked her. "I've requested that they vacate the premises, sir," Caitlin told the man. "My orders are to do no more than that as long as they keep their distance. It's the law." Chauncey, who owned several car dealerships in the area, turned toward the Beacon of Light Church members gathered on a patch of fresh land up a slight rise across the road, land that Mission Burial Park had purchased in order...
